CONFERS WITH THE PRES-

IDENT ABOUT FOOD SUPPLY

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9.—Herbert Hoover, conferring with the president, outlined his ideas of the steps necessary to conserve the food supply of the United States and supply the allies during the war. Asked if he would accept the position as food dictator, if created, Hoover said: "I don't want to be food dictator for the American people. The man who accepts such position will die on the barbed wire of the first line of entrenchments."

JUST ONE WITH BLOOD FOR OUR LACK OF PREPAREDNESS

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, May 9.—Having "failed in time of peace to prepare for war," Theodore Roosevelt said in a speech here last night that the United States and the entire allies "will pay for this act of folly," he urged, Americans must bear themselves manfully in the conflict "and pay with our blood," sending to the front as rapidly as possible a great force of fighting men.

Talking to a Brooklyn audience, members of the Kings county Republican committee and their guests, the former president discussed the country's participation in the war in its military, social and industrial phases. He suggested incorporation of the unmarried men of the national guard of the states into regiments filled out either by the draft or from volunteers from the exempted classes, and the dispatch of these men to France or England for a period of intensive training preparatory to taking their places on the firing line.

Colonel Roosevelt emphasized the necessity for economy and the avoidance of waste, said there should be no improper profit-making, but that reasonable prices should not be eliminated, discussed methods of financing the war, and asserted that the great problems which confront the nation could not be solved "in a spirit of class greed," with capital and labor not in partnership.

America has a two-fold duty at this time, Colonel Roosevelt said, first, immediately to meet with every instrument already available the immediate needs of the war, and second, permanently to shape our policy not merely in military, but in social and industrial matters so as to place this republic on a permanent foundation of justice and strength.

Reiterating his appeal of obligatory universal military training and service, the colonel again urged use of volunteers not included in the draft, saying the men could be placed at the front within 90 days.

"An attempt to keep our men here and train them for a year before sending them over," he said, "would mean that we would rightly awaken the scorn of our allies for the delay and that the men trained here and not at the theater of war would be imperfectly trained from the standpoint of modern warfare."

Expressing the highest admiration for the national guard, the colonel said that there probably "never was a worse blow struck against our military efficiency," than the passage of the Hay bill.

"The only wise and patriotic course to follow in connection with the national guard," he declared, "is to use each national guard regiment as a basis and frame for a regiment of United States volunteers. Under these circumstances all the officers and enlisted men who are fit to go, or who ought to be asked to go, would be transferred into the new volunteer organization, making a skeleton, or framework organization, which would then be filled out either by draft or volunteering as necessary."

In this manner, he declared, we would leave in the state those who ought never to be asked to go from the state or to perform other than the ordinary state duties, and we would use the men who ought to go as a nucleus on which to build a regiment fitted to render the most efficient service in war."

Meanwhile, he said, the flag should go to the firing line at once, with men including volunteers from the exempted classes, "in order to make good our position until the principle of universal voluntary service begins to produce its full effect."

Colonel Roosevelt said that the United States should be prepared to meet with every instrument already available the immediate needs of the war, and second, permanently to shape our policy not merely in military, but in social and industrial matters so as to place this republic on a permanent foundation of justice and strength.

MUST USE CORN INSTEAD OF WHEAT

FOOD COMMISSION PROPOSES CHANGES IN THE METHODS OF LIVING

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9.—America must turn to corn to release wheat for shipment abroad if the allies are to be fed and Germany is to be defeated, Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the food commission, who is strongly in favor of a more limited use of wheat in this country, urged a separate department of the government to deal with the food question.

He recommended absolute government control of certain staples, particularly grain and sugar. He asked prompt action on the administration's food bills and pointed to allied food troubles as proof of the necessity for taking hold of the situation early in the war.

Centralization of food control, Mr. Hoover told the senate committee, is vital. Europe, he said, has found maximum price fixing a failure, but minimum price fixing has had better success. The bills advocated by Mr. Hoover give the president and the department of agriculture direct control of the country's food resources.

Since Mr. Hoover's return from Europe there have been suggestions that the measures may be changed to allow creation of an emergency organization to administer their more drastic provisions.

Price fixing and distribution problems will be dealt with by this body if created.

The bills as drawn give the agriculture department power to reduce wheat consumption to some extent by ordering an increase in the amount of the wheat kernel used in flour manufacture. Europe is using a large percentage successfully now, although at first some of the allied countries used too much of the whole wheat and their bread was declared injurious to health.

WILLIAM MAUPIN, pioneer of Tonopah, who has been at Indianapolis taking a thorough course in vulcanizing, returned to Tonopah this morning and will engage in that business here. He brought with him a complete set of machinery for that special work.

AMUSEMENTS

BUTLER THEATER

"Miss Theda Bara in 'The Tiger Woman,' a story abounding in tense and dramatic scenes and situations, a lavish production. In 'The Tiger Woman,' Theda Bara reaches the height of a siren's art. The character Miss Bara plays in this wonderfully staged William Fox super deluxe production out rivals all previous 'vampire' roles. It depicts the innermost soul of a hard, cruel, siren, devoid of scruples. Miss Bara as Princess Petrovitch, the wife of a Russian noble, is a woman lacking in moral fibre. She is consumed with a desire to live only for money and precious jewels, to have man become her prey and plaything, casting him aside when he no longer can supply her with baubles and money. A pair of Chantilly lace stockings that cost $250 are worn by Miss Bara in this production. They are of a beautiful and marvelous design and of exquisite workmanship. This is a six-act production and a one-reel Paramount comedy 'He Got There After All,' makes a rattling good seven-reel show, one that will be enjoyed by all. Tomorrow Francis Larrimore in 'The Royal Pauper,' also five books given away. 'The Poor Little Rich Girl.' Last of all, just take a tip from me after you see the show this evening, and be sure to come back Friday. It is a good one.

Today: Violet Mersereau in "The Honor of Mary Blake," a five reel Bluebird production, gripping story of theatrical life. Story by John C. Brownell. Faith, Hope and Charity, and the greatest of these is Charity. A pretty little play with a moral, which everyone will surely like, and also keep you in suspense until the very end. Mutual Weekly showing subway caves in, naval militia off on war duty. French cruiser Joan of Arc visits U. S. and many other late and interesting events.

Tomorrow: Ann Murdock in "Envy," the first of the "Seven Deadly Sins," a five-reel drama. "Seven Deadly Sins" is a series of seven five-reel photoplays, each a complete drama.

MRS. JAMES BUTLER, the "mother of Tonopah," who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. John Moore, of Smoky Valley, arrived from Round Mountain this morning. She is accompanied by Mrs. Earl Bohannon, two children, and Bob Logan. They left in their auto for Big Pipe this afternoon.
